1. Summary

The UK Independent Mechanism (UKIM)\(^1\) welcomes this Westminster Hall debate and the opportunity to hear from the UK Government on its progress towards implementing the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UN Convention).

UKIM’s key concerns:
- To date, the UK Government has not made any commitment to implementing the UN Committee’s recommendations in 2017 on the steps it needs to take to comply with the UN Convention, including those related to social security reforms. It also rejected the UN Committee’s recommendations on social security reform in its 2016 inquiry report.
- However, extensive evidence shows that disabled people continue to face serious regression of their rights to an adequate standard of living and social protection, and to live independently in the community.
- Continued lack of action from the UK Government on the UN Committee’s recommendations goes against the UK Government’s stated commitments to equality and inclusion for disabled people, and undermines its position as a global leader on disability rights.

We recommend the UK Government:
- Sets out how it plans to comprehensively address the UN Committee’s recommendations, including those related to social security.
- Clarifies whether the new Inter-Ministerial Group on Disability and Society will be the vehicle through which the UK Government will take forward the UN Committee’s recommendations; how it will relate to devolved governments; and how it will work with disabled people’s organisations and UKIM.
2. Issue
UKIM is concerned about the lack of UK Government progress in protecting the rights of disabled people in the UK. We have particular concerns about the adverse impact of social security reforms on disabled people.

In 2016, the UN Committee on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities (UN Committee) found evidence of grave and systematic violations of disabled people’s rights to: an adequate standard of living and social protection; work and employment; and independent living.²

The UN Committee also raised concerns about these three issues and a range of others – such as barriers to disabled people’s rights in education, access to justice, participation in public life, and healthcare - as part of its first review of the UK’s compliance with the UNCRPD in 2017.³ UKIM, along with disabled people’s organisations, wants to see progress on implementing all of the UN Committee’s recommendations to strengthen the protection of disabled people’s rights in the UK.

The UK Government has asserted its commitment “to equality for disabled people” and “to remove barriers to create opportunities for disabled people to fulfil their potential and be fully participating members of society”.⁴ Internationally, the UK Government promotes itself as a leader in disability rights and a proactive supporter of the UNCRPD.⁵ However, the UK Government has yet to take concrete steps to address the concerns and recommendations of the UN Committee.

The UK Government has recently announced an Inter-Ministerial Group on Disability and Society.⁶ Details of this proposed Group, including how it will relate to devolved governments, involve disabled people’s organisations and UKIM, and its remit in relation to addressing the UN Committee’s recommendations are unclear.

3. Evidence
Extensive evidence from disabled people and their organisations, disability charities, Parliamentary Committees, academics, churches, trade unions and local and international equality and human rights organisations paints a concerning picture of regression on disabled people’s rights.⁷

The UK Government’s own statistics demonstrate that a substantially higher proportion of individuals who live in families with disabled members live in poverty, compared with individuals who live in families where no one is disabled.⁸
Additional evidence presented by UKIM in its most recent submission to the UN Committee shows:

- a high proportion of disabled people resorting to the use of food banks;
- a higher proportion of disabled people being disadvantaged as a result of the introduction of the Employment and Support Allowance (ESA), particularly the negative impact of Work Capability Assessments and ESA conditionality on the mental health of claimants;
- disabled people being disproportionately affected by the new sanctions regime; and
- continued regression in disabled people’s right to live independently in the community, including the risk of re-institutionalisation posed by funding cap polices of Clinical Commissioning Groups in England.

In March 2018, a cumulative impact assessment of tax and benefit changes between 2010-2018, commissioned by the EHRC, shows that households with one or more disabled members will face large and disproportionately negative impacts compared with households with no disabled members, demonstrating continued regression in rights protection for disabled people going forward. The report found that, as a result of reforms, in 2021-2022, households with at least one disabled adult and a disabled child will lose over £6,500 a year – over 13% of their annual income.

4. Further information
The UK Independent Mechanism has produced a comprehensive note providing details of its concerns related to the adverse impact of social security reform on the rights of disabled people, and providing background information about the UN Committee’s review of the UK.

Content lead:
Hannah Russell, Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission
Hannah.Russell@NIHRC.ORG

Carla Garnelas, Equality and Human Rights Commission
Carla.garnelas@equalityhumanrights.com Tel: 0207 832 7836

Parliamentary lead:
Colin Caughey, Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission
Colin.Caughey@NIHRC.ORG

Katherine Perks, Equality and Human Rights Commission
Katherine.Perks@equalityhumanrights.com Tel: 020 7832 7813
In 2009, the UK Government designated the Equality and Human Rights Commission (EHRC), the Equality Commission for Northern Ireland (ECNI), the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission (NIHRC) and the Scottish Human Rights Commission (SHRC) as the UK Independent Mechanism (UKIM) under the UNCRPD, Article 33. UKIM is tasked with promoting, protecting and monitoring implementation of the UNCRPD.

2 CRPD Committee (2016) Inquiry concerning the UK carried out by the Committee under article 6 of the Optional Protocol to the Convention, Report, p. 21, available here [accessed 10 November 2016].

3 The UNCRPD Committee also made concluding observations regarding equality and non-discrimination (Article 5), women with disabilities (Article 6), children with disabilities (Article 7), awareness raising (Article 8), accessibility (Article 9), right to life (Article 10), situations of risk and humanitarian emergencies (Article 11), equal recognition before the law (Article 12), access to justice (Article 13), freedom from torture or cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment (Article 15), freedom from exploitation, violence and abuse (Article 16), protecting the integrity of the person (Article 17), liberty of movement and nationality (Article 18), living independently and being included in the community (Article 19), freedom of expression and opinion, and access to information (Article 21), right to respect for private and family life (Article 23), education (Article 24), health (Article 25), work and employment (Article 27), participation in cultural life, recreation, leisure and sport (Article 30), statistics and data collection (Article 31), international cooperation (Article 32), and national implementation and monitoring (Article 33). See CRPD/C/GBR/CO/1, ‘Concluding Observations on the Initial Report of the UK of Great Britain and NI’, 29 August 2017. Available here [accessed: 21 March 2018].

5 Ibid

7 This wide range of evidence is referenced through UKIM’s submission to the UNCRPD Committee. See UK Independent Mechanism, ‘Disability Rights in the UK’ (UKIM, 2017). Available here [accessed: 21 March 2018].

9 Local Government Association, ‘The Cumulative Impact of Welfare Reform: A National Picture’ (LGA, 2017). Available here [accessed: 21 March 2018]. Recent research commissioned by the Local Government Association on the cumulative impact of welfare reform found that around 900,000 disabled people will see their weekly incomes fall by at least £50 a week by 2020 whilst the average household containing a person with a disability under Universal Credit will be worse off in 2020 by £51.47 per week.
